SINCLAIR WILL NOT TESTIFY TO COMMITTEE

Says Evidence He Has Must Be Reversed for Courts

OIL BOOK RUMOR

Hays Denies Big Contribution From Sinclair, Knew Nothing of Teapot Dome Leasing

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—The Senate Oil Committee today voted unanimously to certify Harry F. Sinclair to the Senate for contempt, as result of his refusal to testify.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—Harry F. Sinclair, who holds the lease to the Teapot Dome, refused to testify before the oil committee today on the ground that any evidence he may possess should be reserved for the courts. In a statement made after the committee unanimously refused to consider his plea, Sinclair said he did not desire to plead that his replies might tend to incriminate him because there was nothing in the facts relating to his Teapot Dome lease that was incriminating. The committee's only recourse now is to certify him to the Senate for contempt. It is indicated no such step will be taken.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—Will H. Hays, former Republican National Committeeman, flatly denied before the oil committee today that Harry F. Sinclair contributed a large sum of oil stocks to wipe out the deficit in the Republican party treasury after the 1920 campaign. "I could only give my best judgment," Hays said, "as to Sinclair's contribution. My judgment is it did not exceed $75,000." He said this was two years after the convention and until he read it in the newspapers he never heard of any lease of any naval reserve to any body, directly or indirectly, a month or two after he left the Cabinet as postmaster general.

BAPTISTS ENJOY MARTIN RECEPTION

About 500 Present at Church Last Night—Contests, Games Features

The reception given by the Rev. and Mrs. Sam P. Martin for the members of the First Baptist church and the entertaining program that followed formed one of the most successful and enjoyable events ever given at the church. About 500 persons were present, representing all departments of the church membership.

Humorous contests formed the feature of the amusement program. Billy Mitchell and Cecil Owsley engaged in a string chewing contest. Neither finished the prune at the middle but Billy won by a narrow margin. In the hat trimming contest, Judge J. R. Sampson carried off the honors with a flapper hat, an artistic and daring example of millinery. Others who engaged in it were: Judge J. E. Evans, the Rev. J. G. Brooking and L. R. Reams. Miss Wilma Hutcheson won the cracker eating contest in which Miss Wanneta Warner, Miss Bertha Hoe and Miss Mary Mattingly engaged.

The pastor made the welcome address, which was followed by a speech by Judge Sampson. All the other numbers previously announced were duly rendered. The playet, "Kids on Strike," by the Junior Baraca class, a decided hit. Ice cream, cakes and fruit were served for refreshments. T. Ross Hill was toastmaster for the meeting.

FORM ASSOCIATION ICE CREAM MAKERS

Meetings of Manufacturers Here Last Wednesday to Perfect Organization

Ice cream manufacturers representing Southeastern Kentucky and territory immediately adjacent in neighboring states met at the Cumberland Hotel, Middlesboro, Wednesday, and after a dinner at 7 o'clock perfected an organization to be known as the Cumberland Ice Cream Manufacturers' association, and whose purpose is to promote the ice cream industry by proper educational development and also maintain the high ethical standards so necessary in the healthy growth of an industry.

A constitution and by-laws were adopted, and directors and officers elected for one year as follow:

D. A. Harkness, Jellico, Tenn.; L. M. Weller, Pineville; H. R. Smith, Harlan; J. D. Chesney, Middlesboro; W. N. Scoville, London; were named as directors.

Officers for the organization are: F. E. Hess, treasurer, Middlesboro; and Carlton Ball, secretary, Louisville.

Regular meetings will be held every two months rotating from one town to another. A different chairman is to be elected at each preceding meeting. Pineville will be the next town where the ice cream men will convene, and L. M. Weller was chosen as chairman.

In addition to organization matters, many problems peculiar to ice cream manufacture in the way of legislation publicity and transportation were taken up. J. O. Bellah of the American Railway Express company was present at the dinner and later spoke at the meeting on express service questions. An outside speaker is to be invited to address the association at each of its meetings.

The following attended the meeting: Judge J. L. Manring, J. S. Shesney, F. E. Hess and C. S. Eckrosh, Buttercup Ice cream Co., Middlesboro; A. H. Smith, Barbourville; H. H. Chamberlin, Barbourville; D. A. Harkness, Jellico and LaFollette, Tenn.; C. E. Perkins, Corbin; W. N. Scoville, London; H. R. Smith, Harlan; L. M. Weller, Pineville; Carlton Ball, general secretary, The Dairy Products Association of Kentucky, Louisville; W. S. Douglas, Middlesboro.

They will be planted under proper supervision to insure their getting a fair start. A. M. Kinnaird and the Rev. W. K. McClure form the committee in charge of the tree planting.

The committee is anxious to give out some of these trees to Middlesboro residents who believe they need them planted in front of their homes. Any one interested is asked to notify either one of these men Monday morning and they can obtain the trees from the city hall through them. Local citizens are also asked to cooperate in the tree planting by insisting that their children leave these new trees alone. The trees are elms and maples, and are fine trees, eight or ten feet tall.

The tree planting is part of a program of civic beautifying begun by the Community Chest which may include parks and other improvements.

Pilgrims Daily Visit Memorial Erected by Ramsay McDonald English Premier to His Wife

Associated Press

LONDON, Mar. 22.—The achievement of Ramsay McDonald in rising from an envelope-sticking clerk to the highest political position in Great Britain is tinged with tragedy in the thought that his, wife, who labored with him in his struggles to improve the position of the poor, died before great honors came to him.

A Memorial erected by Mr. Macdonald and her friends to Mrs. Macdonald in front of their former home in Lincoln's Inn Fields has, with Labor's advent to power, changed from an unsung marble group and wooden bench to a center of public pilgrimage. Daily hundreds leave the rumbling traffic of Fleet street and the Strand to stroll through the quiet little park near which the memorial—with the woman's arms outstretched to welcome a host of little children—identifies itself thus: "This seat was placed here in memory of Margaret Ethel Macdonald, who spent her life to help the others."

This time, to the care of their father. Her death must have saddened many other children, for all her life she had devoted time, thought and work to improving the lot of little ones in poverty. As a school girl she worked at a small boys' club in Kensington, and later education claimed her keen interest. To the grown-up poor, as well as their offspring, she lent a hand of help one of her principal aims being to improve the working conditions of barmaids and charwomen.

Mrs. Macdonald's interests were political as well as humanitarian, but perhaps the former was but a means of attaining her ambitions in the latter respect. She was the daughter of Dr. J. H. Gladstone, a scientist of some repute, and she first met Mr. Macdonald in 1895. Later, for years, their home was crowded, once every three weeks, with men and women busy in the service of the Labor Party. But her home was not a political salon, and the drawing rooms of some of the [illegible]

DISASTROUS FIRE EARLY TODAY AT BARBOURVILLE

H. R. Chandler's Newspaper Eqiupment Entirely Destroyed

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Theatre, Cafe, Flats in Mitchell Building Burn, Loss Near $100,000 Insurance Covered Part

A disastrous fire in Barbourville early this morning completely destroyed the Mitchell Theatre building and most of the stock in it. The loss is estimated at near $100,000. The fire started in the basement, it is believed, though now is not known. It was about 2 o'clock when it was discovered and at that time the flames had gained such headway that they could not be checked.

The Mitchell building housed the Mitchell Theatre, the Mountain Advocate office and the National Cafe on the first floor, and flats in which five families lived on the second floor. Nothing was saved except two typewriters from the newspaper office and some household goods from one of the flats. All of the loss except that of the National Cafe wa sinsured, but none of it for full value.

H. R. Chandler of this city, editor of the Mountain Advocate, was one of the principal losers. All of his printing equipment was entirely destroyed by fire. His typewriters in the window were the only things saved. His loss is only partially covered by insurance.

The fire started at about 1:30 o'clock and was not extinguished until about 6 a. m.

ARTHUR JOHNSON'S BARN BURNS WITH CONTENTS

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the barn and an Oldsmobile car of Arthur Johnson on Twelfth street early this morning. A cow which was in the barn was so badly burned the owner had to kill her.

The fire department answered the call immediately. Owing to the absence of the fire truck from the city, only the natural water pressure of the hydrants was available. This was sufficient to save nearby buildings, however, though the flames had gained such headway on the frame barn that they could not be extinguished until the building was practically destroyed.

Telephones in the East End and service to points across the mountain were seriously impaired by the fire which burned into two the 100-pair cable of the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph company. A crew is at work on the cable, though Guy Glover, manager, says service cannot be resumed before tomorrow morning.

TWO YOUNG GIRLS DISAPPEAR FROM HOMES NEAR RICHMOND

RICHMOND, Mar. 22.—It is reported that Estelle Amster and Nell Derbin, each 15 years old, of the Booneboro section, disappeared from the McCord school on the Booneboro pike, at Tuesday about noon. Miss Amster is the daughter of Morris Amster, a farmer and merchant, who lives in that section.

Prof. Rufus Click, of the McCord school, stated Miss Amster asked permission to go home at noon for lunch and asked that he let Miss Derbin go with her. He said he told the girls they could go if they would promise they would return before the school when school began for the afternoon, as it was necessary for the Amster girl to be there

Young Pineville Man, Who Shot Self, Never Gains Consciousness—Cause Mystery

Eugene H. Martin died at the Wilson hospital at Pineville at 2:30 yesterday afternoon from the effects of a self-inflicted wound Thursday morning from which he never rallied.

The remains were taken to Shelbyville, the old home place of the deceased, today. Funeral services will be conducted at the Waddy Baptist church, a short distance from Shelbyville at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. Interment will be at a cemetery at Shelbyville.

The deceased is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Martin, of Toledo, O.; a brother, Lewis Martin, minister of Shelby, O., and a sister, Miss Anna Mae Martin, student at the Georgetown college. His uncle, C. D. Martin, accompanied members of the family to Pineville yesterday.

START REPAIRING LOTHBURY BRIDGE

Ground Had Settled, Concrete Cracked, Further Damage Threatened

Repair work on the Lothbury avenue bridge over the canal began today. The work is being done by J. G. McCalla, engineer of the Luten Bridge company, the firm which built the bridge.

Several months ago the ground at the west end of the bridge settled and caused the concrete railings of the bridge to crack and threatened other damages to the structure. The concrete is being chiseled out at a number of places so that the proper repairs may be made.

Mr. McCalla says that the work will be finished within a week. Local workmen are being used for the job. The superintendent of the construction is well-known here, having built the Twentieth street bridge for the Luten Bridge company.

The work is being done entirely at the expense of the bridge construction firm. Some months ago the matter was taken up at the city council meeting and afterwards the Luten Bridge company was notified of the damage. They waited for a time before making the repairs so that the ground at the ends of the bridge became firmly settled.

HUNT'S WASHINGTON LETTER

BY HARRY B. HUNT

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—President Coolidge's selection of Judge Curtis D. Wilbur of California as secretary of navy, to succeed Edwin Denby, is inevitably viewed in Washington from its possible political as well as general significance.

The extent to which Wilbur's selection may strengthen Coolidge's position in California, as against Hiram Johnson, in the coming campaign, is naturally a subject for speculation.

Wilbur's appointment gives California two representatives in the cabinet—more than any other state. With the friends of a secretary of navy and a secretary of commerce—for Hoover is also a Californian—putting for Calvin in his home state, Johnson's fight may be made much more difficult.

Wilbur's entry into the cabinet puts a number of things in pairs. He makes the second member of the cabinet who is a graduate of Annapolis' Naval Academy, the other being Secretary of War Weeks. He is also the second member claiming Iowa as his birth state, the other Iowan being Hoover.

Maybe Hoover and Wilbur are expected to help out in Iowa as well as in California. For Iowa—due to the influence of Senator Brookhart and his liberal Farm-Labor and Non-partisan League friends—is also a cause of some perturbation in the conservative Coolidge camp.

Despite the daily scandals emanating from Washington, involving high and low in a maze of alleged graft, corruption and general crookedness, the opinion of the politically wise is that the criminal conviction of any of the higher-ups named in the disclosures is altogether unlikely.

As is the case in the southern households, the colored cook is expected to help herself to enough foodstuffs from her employer's larder to supply her own household.

So when this particular housewife had kept a check on Mandy for several days she decided it was time to call a halt.

"Mandy," she said, "you're a Christian, aren't you?"

"Ah suttinly am, Missy. Ah suttinly am!" Mandy responded fervently.

"And you expect to go to Heaven when you die?"

"Indeed Ah does."

"Well, Mandy," continued her mistress, "I'm afraid you're going to be disappointed. You have been stealing food. And you don't expect to go to Heaven if you keep on stealing, do you?"

Mandy threw back her head in a guffaw of merriment.

"Lawsy, missy," she said, "you's suttinly got all mixed up. Why—stealin' and religion they saint got nuthin' to do with each other. They's entirely two different things!"

And that's the way Harrison suggests, former Secretary Fall, for instance, will answer charges, say, in connection with the lease of the California naval oil reserve to Edward Doheny.

ROXIE STINSON AGAIN TALKS TO INVESTIGATORS

Says Charge of Blackmail by Daugherty Frame-up

ACCUSES BRIBERY

Jess Smith's Divorced Wife Says He Was Daugherty's Tool—Knew Hamon Proposed For Cabinet

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of Jesse Smith, bumper and friend of Attorney General Daugherty, took the stand again today in an investigation of Daugherty. Replying to charges in the Daugherty statement that she registered in a Cleveland hotel with A. L. Fink, Buffalo, N. Y. as man and wife and attempted to blackmail Daugherty for $150,000 as a frame-up, said she met Fink in a hotel to talk over a big deal and Fink registered them as man and wife. She was angry and said later that Fink told her they were both under arrest for registering under fictitious names and that both were held for the bars unless she promised to say nothing damaging to Harry Daugherty. The witness said she was told a man named Ellis made affidavit that $150,000 would be divided between her, Fink and Ellis if she would promise silence.

At other points in her testimony Miss Stinson said Jake Hamon told her himself of a "deal" at the Chicago Republican National Convention and that both Hamon and Smith said Hamon was to get a cabinet position. She declared Smith feared Daugherty, and was Daugherty's tool.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—Information has come to Senator Walsh, oil committee prosecutor, that a book relating to oil deals at the Chicago Republican National Convention in 1920 was at one time in print and then suppressed. Walsh said today he had been promised a copy but did not know the author's identity.

PRESBYTERIAN MEN'S DINNER

Knoxville Layman Speaker at Meeting Last Night, Preliminary to Church Canvass

The men of the Presbyterian Church had a particularly enjoyable and enthusiastic meeting last night at the church. The occasion was a dinner, held annually as preparatory to the every member canvass of the church for the year's budget. This canvass will be made among the church members Sunday afternoon by the men of the church working in pairs.

The chief feature of the meeting last night was the address by E. L. McClurkan of Knoxville, teacher of the Men's Bible Class in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church there. His theme was the personal responsibility of the individual to God, not only to give his money, but also time and best efforts to the work of the church and of God. The evident earnestness of the speaker, a Knoxville business man, gripped his listeners.

Dr. R. E. Douglas was chairman of the meeting. Hugh Allen, who recently returned from a month's stay in the north, gave a short talk on the subject of giving. Mrs. Ed Alderson played several beautiful violin selections, greatly enjoyed. Group singing was also a feature of the program.

The supper was served by the women of the church under the direction of the committee on social activities.

NEWSPAPERS BEST ADS FOR CITIES

Most people look on a newspaper as the business of a single individual. If it thrives, that is the owner's or the editor's business. As a matter of fact, the success or failure of a paper is a matter of fact. the sucess or failure of a paper is a matter of grave concern to an entire town.

Newspapers are the best advertisement a city has in the outside world. Other cities judge a town by the kind of newspaper it has. If it is supported well, given the news and advertising patronage it ought to have, it thrives and is able to present an appearance of prosperity for the town to the outside world. If it does not thrive, outsiders are inclined to look on the town as undesirable to live in, and so move on to other cities.

Thomas Jefferson once said that if he had to have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, he would take the newspapers, because through them he felt that the state could be run with at least fair success.

If some of us appreciated more fully the value of our newspapers, we would take greater effort to see that they get the news and advertising and so become successful. Modern society can not get along without newspapers any more than it can without schools and churches.

WILBUR ACCEPTABLE AS NAVY SECRETARY

The nomination of Chief Justice Curtis D. Wilbur of the California Supreme Court to be Secretary of the Navy succeeding Edwin Denby who resigned, has met with approval on all sides. Wilbur is a native of Boonesville, Ia., having been born there on May 10, 1867. He graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1888, afterward entering law. His first entrance into public life was as chief deputy district attorney of Los Angeles, serving in that capacity for four years. He was then elected Superior Judge holding that office until 1918 when he was elected Associate Judge of the California Supreme Court, entering that body in 1919 for a twelve year term. Last year he was elevated to the Chief Justiceship. Despite the fact that he forsook the navy for law, he has always maintained a keen interest in naval affairs, more especially the mechanical side and has ever been a keen student of the progress made in battleships during the past decade or so. In California they say that his very industriousness causes others to work hard while engaged upon any task with him.

Mr. Wilbur is a man of deep religious feelings. He does not smoke or drink and for a number of years wrote what might be called a weekly sermon for the Los Angeles papers. He is a man who stands for those institutions on which this country is founded. He believes in church life and the sanctity of the home.

BETTER BOOKS BEING READ

If there are those who have been led by the remarkable increase in the number of magazines devoted to short stories of a rather trashy sort to believe that the taste of the American reading public has degenerated, the reports submitted by libraries as to the kind of books now most in demand may cause them to change their minds. In attempting to gauge, from an analysis of library circulation, the literary likes and dislikes of the people, however, consideration must be given to the that the libraries as a rule exclude from their shelves unworthy publications and those which, if not downright meretricious, are at least hardly deserving of being classed as good literature. Not a few books are published and read which are denied a place in the public libraries.

But if the circulation of the libraries is not an infallible index to the tastes of the reading public, it indicates roughly what is desired. And it is encouraging to note that there has been an increase, in the demand for books that are not intended merely to entertain.

A Los Angeles library states that a life of Christ and a treatise on etiquette have been its best circulators during the past year. Biography is steadily increasing in popularity throughout the country. Everywhere readers are calling for books dealing with radio and other forms of applied science. Books relating to psychoanalysis and vocational guidance are called for frequently. Works treating of the fine arts are also much read, probably as a result of the increasing attention that the newspapers are giving to music and exhibition of paintings. Little is said in the library reports, however, concerning poetry. Notwithstanding a large production of verses, poetry in this age seems to be languishing. At any rate it is difficult to conceive of any publisher's being willing nowadays to pay for a volume of poems, say $40,000, the sum that Thomas Moore asked for and received for "Lalla Rookh." And there probably is no contemporary poet that comes near to equaling the income of approximately $24,000 a year that Tennyson received for many years from his poems.

A Chicago bookseller thinks "the age of the novel" is passing. The movies are possibly impairing the demand for fiction; but it is doubtful.

It is not desirable that people should cease to read novels, but it is gratifying that they are giving more attention than formerly to literature that is not purely recreational.

SATURDAY

The Wayward Heart

Read Mt. 18:23-35. Text: 18:35. So shall also my heavenly Father do unto you, if ye forgive not everyone his brother from your hearts.

"God and man are by their very natures meant for each other. A bad man is a man who works against, instead of with, a good God. He fails to fall in with God's will for an honest and friendly world. Since the point of God's impact is in the depths of the man's being, in his heart, it is in his heart that resistance is made and the badness centers."

Meditation: God has not put upon us the responsibility of judging our brethern. Yet we realize that the things of men ofttimes do grieve the heart of God because they injure some of his other children. A wrong done one person by another brings the deepest anguish to the human soul. Evil deeds done to others are the results of an evil heart—a heart set at cross purposes to the loving will of God.

Personal Question: Am I indifferent at the waywardness of another?

Prayer: Almighty God, strengthen us that we may be used of thy spirit to turn many into thy ways. Let us feel the burdens and sorrows of thy children that we may be intercessors at the throne of grace. Give us power through calm confidence in thee, in Christ's name. Amen.

CAMPAIGN OF TREE TRIMMING IN MIDDLESBORO

Since the inauguration of the tree cutting on Twent-first street a few weeks ago, other residents of the vicinity have begun to cut down old trees along the sidewalks and to trim others whose branches came in contact with the overhead electric and telephone wires.

Trees have been cut or trimmed along Winchester and Exeter avenues and on Twenty-second street recently. In some places the roots, growing under concrete walks, had pushed upward, causing a break in the paving.

Sixteen new automatic parcel lockers have been installed at the local railway passenger depot. The lockers are large enough to use for large packages or suitcases. The smaller ones which have been in the depot for some time were removed when the new ones were installed. Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 2—THE PIPE-CLEANER MAN

Mister Fuzz Wuzz, the pipe-cleaner man, met the Twins at the door of Doofunny Land.

He bowed low, but sprang back instantly into place, and put on the high silk hat that he had quickly grabbed off his head upon their arrival.

Mister Fuzz Wuzz was quite a gentleman!

"How do you do!" he said politely. "You're a little late, but it doesn't matter. The jury is all here, but you. Now we can go on with the trial."

"What is a jury?" asked Nancy, "and what's a trial?"

"Were you expecting us?" Nick wanted to know.

Mister Fuzz Wuzz looked at his watch. "For the last half hour," he said. "But I'm surprised that you don't know what a jury is! It's 12 people who decide something. When somebody is blamed for doing something wrong, then they are taken to court, and 12 people are asked to come and hear all about it. They're called a jury! They decide whether the person is to blame, or not to blame. The whole thing is called a trial. Understand?"

"Yes, yes!" cried the Twins. "Let's go right away. It sounds very exciting."

"It is!" nodded Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "I'll tell you the facts of the case on the way."

So off they started.

"It's all about the peanut boy's nose," said Mister Fuzz Wuzz gravely. "It's broken!"

"Did he get into a fight?" asked Nick.

"No! The tin-soldier rode his tin horse right over him and it is the soldier who has to be tried," said Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "It is very serious because once a peanut person's nose is broken it never mends, and his appearance is ruined. But here we are at the courthouse."

The Twins followed the pipe cleaner man up the steps and through a hall and into a large room that was simply packed with people. All Doofunny Land was there to see the trial—most of the people in the audience being the rest of the tin soldiers in the box where the prisoner belonged. They had come to help their comrade.

The cut-out man and his wife and all their children were there, too, and the rag-doll and the pincushion lady and the Humpty Dumpty clowns and the gingerbread man and Teddy Bear, and the woolen waddle duck and everybody!

"Go and sit down in those two empty chairs," whispered Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "I'm to be judge. Now begin, please!" he said, taking off his high hat and going behind a big desk, where he looked as important as the president.

"Where is the prisoner?" he said loudly.

In rode the tin soldier on his tin horse.

"Dismount," thundered Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "You can't bring your horse in here."

"But I did bring him in, sir," said the tin soldier. "No trouble at all, sir! Besides, I can't leave him. He goes where I go. We're made in one piece."

Everybody laughed.

"Silence!" roared the pipe-cleaner man.

THE TRAIL TO PEACE

The trails of the world are only two;
The trail to work and the trail to you.
I climb with a song to work; but best
The trail to you is the trail of rest.

The road to you is the road to peace.
Here in your hands my doubtings cease.
My struggles and scorn and hurts I lay all away.

You crush them and fling them from you, telling
Me all I've forgot; and I feel love welling
Fresh in my heart each time as new
As if I had never found peace before
At the end of your path beside your door.
Soon I'll take the trail to my work anew,
But tonight I may climb to peace and you!

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

DAILY MENU FOR THE STOUT AND THIN

Lose Weight

One large orange, 1 cup clam broth, 7 ounces broiled weakfish, 1 baked stuffed green pepper, 1 cup cabbage salad, 2 glutten puffs, 1-2 cup prepared bran, 2 thin slices gluten bread, 4 tablespoons pineapple water-ice, 2 lady fingers or small piece sponge cake, 1 pint skimmed milk.

Total calories, 1219. Protein, 317; fat, 229; carbohydrate, 673. Iron, .0160f gram.

Gluten Puffs

One cup gluten flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup cold water.

Add water slowly to flour, beating with a dover beater. Add salt and continue beating vigorously for ten minutes. Turn into sizzling hot buttered iron gem pans and bake half an hour in a hot oven. The more you beat, the better the "puffs" will be. And they really are very good even if they don't sound reasonable.

Total calories, 437. Protein, 167; fat, 101; carbohydrate, 169. Iron, .0088 gram.

The recipe will make 12 small puffs.

The peppers are stuffed with mushrooms a little cooked macaroni and about 1 tablespoon canned tomato with a springling of grated cheese over the top.

Gain Weight

One large orange, 1 cup cooked wheat cereal, 3 ounces ham omelet, 1 cup clam broth, 1 large swiss cheese and rye bread sandwich, 6 ripe olives, 7 ounces broiled weakfish with 2 tablespoons lemon butter, 4 tablespoons baked squash, 4 tablespoons mashed potato, 1 baked stuffed green pepper, 1 cup cabbage salad with cream dressing, 4 tablespoons pineapple water ice with large piece sponge cake, 1-6 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons maple sirup, 2 tablespoons croutons, 3 Parker house rolls, 1 pint whole milk, 1-2 cup cream.

Total calories, 4162. Protein, 483; fat, 1749; carbohydrate, 1930. Iron, .019 gram.

The raisin pie adds iron as well as sugar to the diet.

During the maple sirup season the person who would gain may enjoy the fresh sirup to the utmost.

The squash should be well seasoned with butter.

The foods for the gaining diet are planned to be simply cooked in order to preserve the mineral salts as much as possible and provide easily digested nourishment.

As squash is rich in carbohydrate, the reducing member should not indulge.

FABLES ON HEALTH

One day a friend approached Mr. Mann of Anytown, and asked: "What do you do with your feet?"

"I walk on them," answered Mr. Mann.

Which, seemingly, was a perfectly logical answer.

"Oh, like so many people, you don't use your head when you use your feet."

Which perplexed Mr. Mann.

The moral of what the friend said is that lack of attention to the feet often causes irritability or headache at the close of the day.

The feet should be bathed at least once a day and, if one stands on them much, foot baths should be taken twice a day.

Don't soak them in hot water! Tepid water should be used and a rough towel is best in drying them. Use talcum powder afterward.

A good foot massage before going to bed is recommended by many. First bathe them; then follow with a brisk rubbing.

"Treat your feet as well as they treat you."

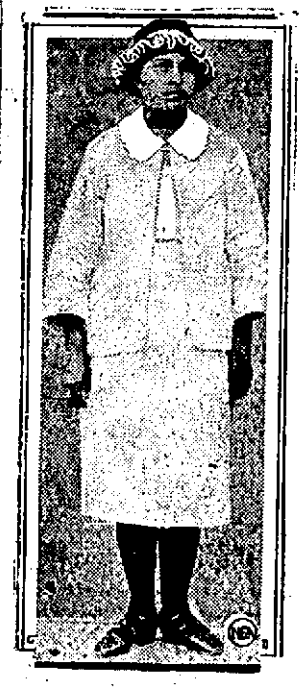
FROM $5.35 TO WEALTH IN ONE YEAR



EXIE FIFE JACKSON

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Mar. 22.—A year ago Exie Fife Jackson, 18-year-old Creek Indian lass, lived in a box car.

And, when she went to borrow $1.50 from a government field clerk, she discovered she had a bank balance of just $5.35 at the Indian agency.

But times have changed for Exie. Oil was discovered on her allotment in the Bristow fields. Exie became a rich girl. Her royalties last year are said to have been $200,000.

Then began the troubles of the agency officials. Exie had to have a bungalow. She had to have a motor car.

Since then she's had three of each.

Meanwhile she married her schoolday sweetheart, Berlin Jackson, a white school boy. Martial difficulties followed.

Now a Congressional investigation of everything is likely. For Exie says she paid her husband and his lawyers $50,000.

Jackson says he didn't get it. The two attorneys say they got only $250 each.

Agency men are trying to find out who did.

"THANK-U," HERE TONIGHT WELL-RECEIVED IN KNOXVILLE

The following review on "Thank-U," playing here tonight, is from the Journal and Tribune of Knoxville where it played last night:

"Thank-U," a three-act comedy played to a highly appreciative audience at the Bijou theatre last night. The comedy written by John Golden is original in conception of plot and the characters were finely illustrative of the motives and weaknesses of human nature.

The plot is based on the tribulations of a rector on a small town Episcopal church, living on a salary of $800 per annum. His niece comes to live in his home and scandalizes the parish by her ideas. Through the financial assistance of a millionaire, whose son loves the niece, the rector is given the financial means which enabled him to do the work he always dreamed of.

The company was so well-balanced that to mention any of the cast seems like favorites, but the work of Harry Davenport as the rector, or Herbert Saunders as senior warden, and of Frank Monroe as the millionaire father could have hardly been excelled. Miss Remy Carmen as the neice struck just the right balance and her beauty captured the love of the audience.

However, Comma—

NEW YORK, Mar. 22.—After keeping all his superlatives carefully packed away in moth-balls for a long time this reviewer is forced, unwillingly, to bring out once more those dread bugbears of the reading public.

It is far more enjoyable to suffer a thousand deaths than to say a picture, a play or a book is "wonderful," "great," "best," etc.

But after seeing a first-night showing of "The Thief of Bagdad," starring Douglas Fairbanks, I'm forced to admit that, pictorially at least, the picture so far surpasses anything heretofore made, as, to make comparisons unnecessary.

Doug is a brave actor. Make no mistake about that. He risked having his individuality drowned in a maze of wonderful sets. So gorgeous are these sets, indeed, that they make the prologue of "The Ten Commandments" look like a shanty-boat on the Ohio river.

"The Thief of Bagdad" is a fairy-tale, a fantasy. Through the medium of trick photography, a magic carpet flies through the air, a dashing white horse rides on the clouds, soldiers spring from nothing at all.

Fairbanks, of course, is the thief. He takes what he wishes when he wishes. But one day, while in the castle to steal, he sees the princess, and the evil in him dies. To win her, the Holy Man tells him, he must get the Magic Chest of Nazir, and it is while on the quest for the chest that Doug's adventures fall.

Of course, the picture will set the children of all nations howling in glee. But it will do more—it will entertain the adults not alone for its pictorial worth, which defies description, but also because Fairbanks and his director, Raoul Walsh, have deliberately put into the film, food for thought. The point they bring out, as was brought out in the story of the thief, is that to gain happiness, one must earn it.

DOUG FAIRBANKS

So off Doug goes, through the Cave of Fire, the Cave of Monsters until he becomes to the Old Man of the Midnight Sea. To get the chest he must dive to the bottom of the ocean, and here again is a truly wonderful bit of photography. Down, down, down Doug goes. It looks like he is going through water.

Finally he reaches the bottom, where he finds a magic key which opens a door that houses a winged horse. Off Doug goes on the horse riding on the clouds until he reaches the moon.

But isn't that enough to illustrate this truly great fantasy? It isn't meant to be anything more than that. At times Fairbanks, alone in a great set, looks the size of a pinpoint; these are the moments when his personality nearly is swallowed by the costly sets. But Doug survives.

There is more action in the last half than the first part of the picture. The beginning is occupied in defining his love for the princess and his determination to be worthy of her.

In massiveness of mob action, "The Thief of Bagdad" is comparable to "The Birth of a Nation." In pictorial splendor it outclasses anything thus far made. If it lives in screen history, it will be on that point. It is worth seeing for that feature alone.

And that is why we add "The Thief of Bagdad" to our list of pictures worthy of the public's attention

O, Mistress mine, where are you roaming?
Oh, stay and hear; your true love's coming,
That can sing both high and low:
Trip no farther, pretty sweeting;
Journeys end in lovers' meeting,
Every wise man's son doth know.

What is love? 'Tis not hereafter;
Present mirth hath present laughter;
What's to come is still unsure:
In delay there lies no plenty;
Then come kiss me, Sweet-and-Twenty,
Youth's a stuff will not endure.

—William Shakespeare.

Oriental Hard Lesson

TOKYO, Mar. 21.—It is very difficult for an Asiatic to grasp the idea of "losing with honor" or being "defeated but not disgraced," according to Prof. B. J. Wilden-Hart of the Imperial Japanese university. The old attitude of the fatalistic and feudalistic east, he says, was "win or die."

It will soon be hot enough to forget Congress and cuss the weather.

CONFINED TO BED

Birmingham Lady Took Cardui for Relief of Change of Life Troubles and Says It Helped Her "So Much."

Birmingham, Ala.—"I first took Cardui for that tired, worn-out feeling that comes from being dreadfully rundown," says Mrs. Catherine E. Smith, of 2106 Stout Street. "Twenty-five years ago, I was suffering from womanly weakness.

I read of Cardui in an almanac, and thought I would try it. I got a bottle and it helped me from the first. After that, during the whole of my married life, I took Cardui when I needed it.

"About four years ago, change of life came on me. . . I grew weaker and weaker, and was confined to my bed, where I lay on my back for days. I was told that only a severe operation could do me any good, and this depressed me very much, for I dreaded such an ordeal.

"I remembered how Cardui had helped me for female trouble in the past and I had read of how it had helped other women during change of life, so one night I told my husband to go to the drug store and get me a bottle. I began taking it at once. From the first dose I could feel myself getting stronger. . . I continued to take Cardui until I was entirely through this very trying period of a woman's life."
